

Please amend the Abstract as follows:

A method for individually renting a ~~private~~ privately-owned car is provided which enables a traveler to rent the private car ~~of~~ through a dealer at a place where a journey is made. ~~First customer information about a scheduled traveling period during which a party from whom a car is rent is transmitted. The first~~ First customer information is input to a dealer server via a first dealer terminal and private car availability information is provided to a party who is scheduled to visit a region where the private car which the first customer owns is present. The party to whom the car is to be rented reads the private car availability information and, if a desired private car exists, rent request information is input to the dealer server via a second dealer terminal ~~and is transferred to the other dealer terminal to inform the party from whom the car is rent;~~ the first customer of a desire for renting the desired private car.